Your lead instructor, Jim Sill, is the

Join us for a three-day workshop where we focus on the Google tools that can forever change the way you teach. Using Google's free online tools, we will develop a lesson that you can use in your own classroom. You will learn how to create collaborative projects, create your own Web site, increase communication with students and parents, and travel around the world. This is a project-based workshop where you learn, apply, and experiment with your new knowledge so that you will be ready to make these tools work in your classroom.
