Leading for Improvement

Central Valley Networked Improvement Community (CVNIC) and the Readership Network are comprised of teams across several districts that are focused on a common problem of practice. Leading for Improvement is designed to support coaches and leaders who want to support networked improvement communities.

You are invited to attend this series to use improvement science to think about and focus on your problem of practice. You will deepen your understanding of improvement science as you prepare to lead or coach improvement teams. You will learn about processes for planning and observing improvement cycles, coaching for content, pedagogy and improvement, and developing a culture of learning for improvement.
